

Super works better when it's all together. If you've had more than one job, chances are you have more than one super fund. Ten minutes combining your super could make your super easier to manage.

Are you on track?

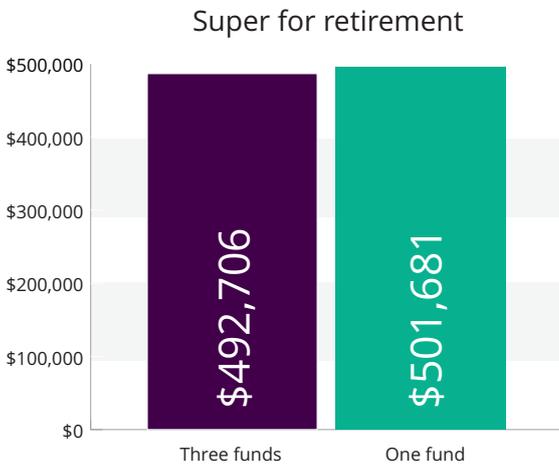

To retire comfortably, you may need more than you think. For a single this means having $595,000 in savings at retirement, while for a couple this means having $690,000.¹ There are several ways to boost your super, such as putting extra money in, but one of the easiest is to combine multiple super accounts and keep your super in one value for money fund, such as Mine Super.

By not paying multiple fees to different funds, you'll have more money to invest for your retirement.

Example: It may not seem like much, but fees add up

Peter has three super funds. If Peter:

- leaves his super split between his three funds, he'll retire with $492,706 in super
- moves his money into just one fund, when he retires he'll have $501,681 in super.
- That's an extra $8,975 in super by age 65!

Assumptions: Peter is aged 35 years, earns $95,000 pa and has $20,000 in each super fund. All three funds charge exactly the same admin fees, have a $214 pa default insurance (only on the funds with active contributions) and have similar returns. Peter plans to retire at age 65. Make your super easier to manage

Having fewer funds means you save time, receive less paperwork and you're less likely to lose track of your super.

“ It’s worth consolidating to stay on top of everything. You have everything in the one fund. It’s all there and you don’t have to work it all out. ” i Before combining your super, please consider the risks. You should consider any differences in insurance between your old and new funds, such as whether you’ll lose any insurance and any unique insurance offerings.
